We discovered Beverley sunning her lithe, lissom body on a beach in the south of France. The beach was the property of a speed-boat club, and Beverley gazed in unabashed admiration at the bronzed, muscular young men whose job it was to instruct the less able clients in the handling of the powerful machines.

'I just love speed and sex,' she told us. 'But not necessarily in that order. A fast car, a plane or a motor boat — having any one of these gives a man a head start over the others. And if he looks anything like those gorgeous hunks, he just has to smile at me and flutter his eyelashes to get into my panties.' ♣

CHARMAINE OF THE BOARD

Photographs by Yan Hannicki

In the dizzy world of high finance, empires ruled by women are no strange event. The modern day Cleopatra can be found in the boardrooms of London and the executive suites of Paris, and where a powerful woman rules things can often be more entertaining than the average businessman might imagine.....

'Anyone out there know of an opening for a croupier or a card dealer? I've never had any experience – well, not in that line anyway, – but I'm willing to learn. I've always been fascinated by gambling and would love to work in a casino. My boyfriend and I usually have bets on which of us can make the other come first. He wins most of the time, but it's worth the forfeit – normally a sexual favour of some kind, like pouring honey on his cock and licking it off. Mmm, that's what I call losing! ♣

Oonagh would like everyone to know without further ado that, yes, it is her real name, and not a publicity stunt.

'It pisses me off sometimes, having to explain it to disbelievers, but really, it's quite a good way to get into a chat-up conversation. And if that leads to a fuck, then it can't be bad. ♣'
